

CROSSING THE LINE

“Commitment is a line you must cross...
it is the difference between dreaming and doing.”

- Bernie Fuchs

There are all kinds of commitment. I committed three years of my life when I joined the United States Army. I am a committed Christian. When I signed the contract with the Broward County School Board to teach at one of their high schools, I committed myself to be there each day, or make arrangements otherwise.

All these are commitments to other organizations or beliefs. How about making a commitment to yourself? Is there something you want to be, do, or have? I believe this is the commitment that Bernie Fuchs is talking about in his quote.

Do you have a desire that is buried deep down in your very being? Maybe you bring it up on occasion, think about it, and then bury it again. Maybe you say to yourself, “I’m not ready ... I’m afraid that I’ll fail ... It’s too late” or any one of hundreds of excuses.

Wally Amos shares this wonderful quote: “I believe there is something only you can accomplish – an idea with your name on it. It is up to you to grab it and do it, or it will never get done.”

Find that dream – Write it down – Visualize it.
Then create a plan as to how you are going to achieve it.
Finally, don’t let anyone tell you it can’t be done!

IF YOU BELIEVE IT, YOU CAN ACHIEVE IT.
